FINE MOTOR DIFFICULTIES AND ALTERNATIVE METHODS OF RECORDING THE CURRICULUM – remote learning

Audience: SENDCos, Class teachers and TAs (primary and secondary)

This training module is for schools who have identified fine motor difficulties in CYP affecting their handwriting and inclusion in practical subjects requiring good hand control, eg DT, Art. The course is offered as a remote course which will require delegates to spend the first hour of their session accessing a theory module on-line. This module will be available for 48 hours before the course. The interactive follow up will cover:

- Practical activities to further explore the impact of poor motor control
- Discussion around other difficulties affecting handwriting, eg visual perception
- Demonstration of practical and assistive technology solution for students to support handwriting
- Adjustments for examinations
- Demonstration of resources to support practical lessons, eg DT and Art
- There will also be a resource sheet sent electronically and discussion around particular issues affecting students in school

FINE MOTOR DIFFICULTIES AND ALTERNATIVE METHODS OF RECORDING THE CURRICULUM – face to face learning

Audience: SENDCos, Class teachers and TAs (primary and secondary)

This training module is for schools who have identified fine motor difficulties in CYP affecting their handwriting and inclusion in practical subjects requiring good hand control, eg DT, Art. The course will be an interactive, practical approach to understanding more about barriers to effective handwriting and strategies to support effective recording:

- Practical activities to further explore the impact of poor motor control
- Practical activities to find out more about visual perception and it's role in handwriting
- Hands-on use of practical and assistive technology solution for students to support handwriting, eg specialist mice and keyboards
- Adjustments for examinations
- Trying out specialist software to support independent recording
- Demonstration of resources to support practical lessons, eg DT and Art
- There will also be a resource sheet sent electronically and discussion around particular issues affecting students in school

This training session is for primary and secondary schools where a CYP has been identified as having both gross motor and fine motor co-ordination difficulties but does not have a diagnosis. There may also be other difficulties associated with their needs, eg specific learning difficulties (dyslexia/dyscalculia), personal organisation difficulties, visual-spatial difficulties as well as practical tasks

- Early identification and interventions (YR-Y2)
- Recognising other associated difficulties, eg ADHD, ASD
- Practical strategies for managing fine motor tasks including handwriting and note-taking
- Inclusion in PE for CYP with co-ordination difficulties

Hemiplegia is a form of cerebral palsy affecting mainly affecting one side of the body. There is a relatively high incidence of hemiplegia affecting around 6 in 1000 children. There are many subtle neurological implications to this condition which can be overlooked due to the CYP often having only mild physical disability. This course sets out to increase understanding of the condition and give practical strategies to support students in school

- What is hemiplegia and hemianopia?
- What is the difference between left and right hemiplegia?
- Hemiplegia and epilepsy
- How does this impact on children in school?
- Practical strategies for practical activities
- Supporting learning for CYP with hemiplegia
- Recording the curriculum with hemiplegia
