You can print this wordsearch or look for the words on the computer. How many can you find? You can use some of these words to do the next activity.

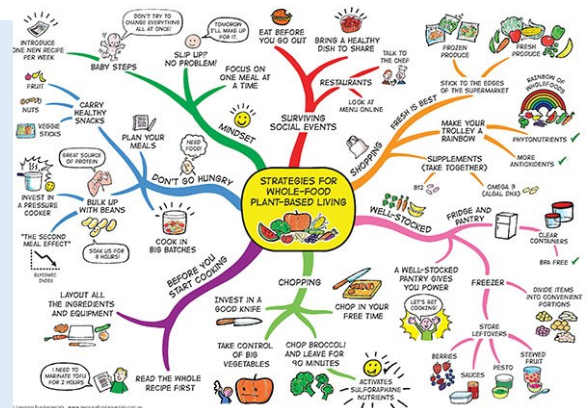

Create a mind map or word board.

We have been learning lots of new ideas and words. Your task is to create a mind-map or a word board about one of the subjects we are looking at this term.

This could be World War I
Diwali, Hanukkah or Christmas
Or Forces.

This is an example of a mind-map.

Your central idea goes in the middle and then all of your ideas, words and knowledge go around this, branching out like a tree. This one is about food but yours will be about what we are doing this term. You could do some research or use some of the ideas from the word-search.

This is an example of a word board. You can see that the words are in different colours and sizes depending on how important they are to the subject. You can do a word board based on World War I, Diwali, Hanukkah, Christmas or forces.

There will be an 'inspire' PRIDE sticker for finished mind-maps and word boards that show you have thought about the words and put effort into how it looks.

Diwali Rangoli Patterns

Diwali is a festival of light celebrated by 3 main religions. Can you find out or remember which ones? During Diwali Hindus create beautiful patterns out of sand in front of their doors to welcome the goddess Lakshmi into their home. She is the goddess of wealth and happiness.

Your task is to create a Rangoli pattern on a piece of paper. Look how even and controlled the circles are. You may need to find something to draw around. Look at the petals of the flower, they are all really even. You could research more patterns. There are some really good You-tube videos showing different Rangoli creations. This is good for our well-being and also for our fine motor control and sense of texture and colour.

Are you going on a walk or in the garden? You could create a Rangoli pattern using leaves, sticks or stones. If you have chalk at home you could use this to create a pattern outside the door—Make sure you ask first.

Research and talk

Research what life was like during World War I

Can you talk to a family member about this and keep it going for 2 minutes? What about 5 minutes?

Can you stay on the subject and answer any questions they may have?

If it is a busy time at home you might create a power-point or some notes and try it out on one of your friends at school.
